

Jamboree At Gayville July 11

GAYVILLE — Gayville Hall presents its monthly musical variety show, "The Hay Country Jamboree," at 8 p.m. on Saturday, July 11, in Gayville.

Two popular guests, the East of Westville singer-and-guitarist Boyd Bristow of Sioux Falls and Iowa's "Singing Farmer," Ervin Pickhinke, join Jamboree regulars, including fiddler Owen DeJong and guitarist- and-singer Nick Schwebach of the Poker Alice and Public Domain Tune bands, for a lively, two-hour show.

Jamborees always feature three-or-more musical acts on stage together trading old-time popular tunes, country, bluegrass, folk, and humor by turn. The shows include a short intermission midway and are presented in an alcohol-free, family-friendly setting.

Gayville Hall is at 502 Washington Street in Gayville. Call (605) 267-2859 for ticket information.

New South Dakota Soil Health Coalition

BROOKINGS, S.D. - SDSU Extension has partnered with the recently launched South Dakota Soil Health Coalition (SHC).

"Our state's number one industry is dependent upon soil health. It's the collective vision of the coalition to increase sustainable agriculture production through diversification and improved soil health," explained Sandy Smart, Professor & SDSU Extension Rangeland Management Specialist.

Led by a farmer/rancher board of directors, the S.D. Soil Health Coalition was established May 19, 2015 with the clear mission: "To promote soil health."

This new coalition was initiated by members of the S.D. Grassland Coalition (SDGC) with encouragement from SDSU Extension, Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and many others.

Selby rancher, Doug Sieck, is Chair of the Soil Health Committee of the SDGC. After discussion, the group agreed that it was desirable for the SDGC to continue to provide leadership in fostering the statewide development of the S.D. Soil Health Coalition, with the probable long-term goal of the new SHC becoming its own entity. Committees are working on bylaws, articles of incorporation and other facets of a new organization.

"Based on past experiences, the best way to share information and receive buy-in is through learning communities," said Smart. "When you have a group of farmers and ranchers who believe in the same mission leading the charge, partners will come along side to help."

He further explained that improving the state's soil health begins with the state's landowners. "If I go out and encourage farmers and ranchers to implement research-based practices, like no-till and cover crops, the message will not be accepted as quickly - or implemented by as many producers - because I am not a farmer or rancher. But if a peer shares the same message, along with examples of how these practices improved their land's soil health and in turn increased production and profits, their neighbors will listen and make changes."

The Board of Directors Charter for the South Dakota Soil Health Coalition includes: Dennis Hoyle, Ipswich, Terry Ness, Pierre, Levi Neuarth, Hayes, Doug Sieck, Selby, Bryan Jorgensen, Ideal, Al Miron, Sioux Falls and Dan Forgey, Gettysburg.

Outreach is a large task for this board of fulltime farmers and ranchers, but Smart said through partnerships with SDSU Extension, NRCS and others, they have a strong support team and access to resources.
