Karolevitz Exhibit Set For The Center

A special Veterans Day exhibit featuring recollections of World War II through the eyes of local author Bob Karolevitz will be on display at The Center, 900 Whiting Drive in Yankton, Nov. 2-20.

Many articles have recently been published in local newspapers to remind the public of the importance of World War II and those who sacrificed to wage that battle, both at home and overseas. It is true that “a picture is worth a thousand words.”

The Center presents the exhibit that commemorates the events of World War II through the eyes of Karellovitz, a resident poet, essayist and historian. Ten photographs and documents will be on display at The Center beginning on Monday, Nov. 2, through Friday, Nov. 20. Along with each photo and document are short paragraphs explaining the content of each. Karolevitz was an everyday GI and his story is the story of most veterans.

Display hours are 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Film On Lakota Language To Be Shown

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota will host a free public showing Thursday, Nov. 5, of the film “Rising Voices” about linguists and members of the Lakota community working together to save the Lakota language.

The Language Conservancy and Florentine Films/Hott Productions, with major funding provided by the National Endowment for the Humanities, are sponsoring the 7 p.m. showing at the Al Neuharth Media Center conference room.

“Rising Voices” is presented and distributed nationally by American Public Television (APT) and will premiere on public television stations nationwide beginning Nov. 1.

Poet Featured At Vermillion Library

VERMILLION — The Edith B. Siegrist Vermillion Public Library will host poet Marcella Remund in its November installment of the Artists & Authors series. She will share insights into her life in poetry and teaching. The event is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3, at the library.

Remund is a native of Omaha, Nebraska, and a South Dakota transplant. She teaches English courses at the University of South Dakota, where she is also the faculty advisor for the Vermillion Literary Project (VLP), the University's literary/creative writing student organization. She is the author of a poetry chapbook, “Finger Bones & Other Relics.” She maintains a blog at www.uncanneryrow.blogspot.com.

The Bookworm

Count On Mysterious ‘Nine Lives’

“Nine Lives: A Lily Dale Mystery” by Wendy Corsi Staub; © 2015, Crooked Lane Books; 288 pages

BY TERI SCHLICHENMEYER

“Aha! There you are!” How many times have you said that in your lifetime? A dozen times playing hide-and-seek; a hundred times looking for lost possessions; weekly, when living with someone who's mobile and active. There you are! The search is complete unless, as in the new mystery, “Nine Lives” by Wendy Corsi Staub, the loss runs deeper ...

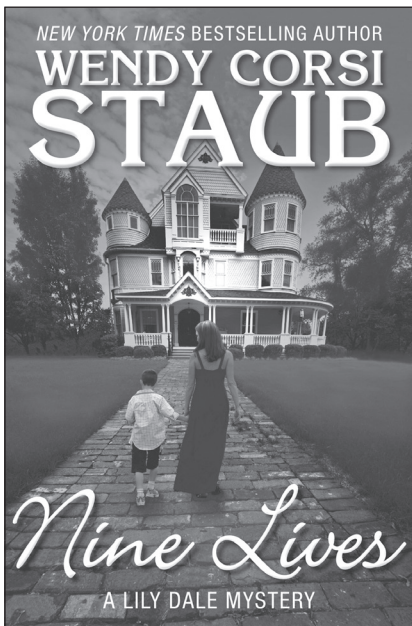

Bella Jordan was sure that she'd have an old Victorian house again someday.

She didn't want to leave the one she'd lived in for so long, but she had to: she couldn't afford it anymore, after having lost her job and her husband, both within a few months. At least she still had Max, her 5-year-old son, her life.

It wouldn't be any fun moving from New York to Chicago to stay with her late husband's mother, but that had to be done, too. Millicent (or Maleficent, as Bella sometimes called her privately) was the kind of woman who disappeared of everything.

Bella just wanted her life back.

The drive to Chicago wouldn't take long; she hoped they'd make it in time for Max to see the July 4th Fireworks from Navy Pier. They'd camp along the way – anything to save a few dollars — but along the road to the first campground, something odd happened that Bella had a hard time explaining.

Through a strange set of circumstances, she and Max landed in the small town of Lily Dale, New York, home to a community of psychics, one of which who'd recently drowned in a lake behind her home. Because Bella had car troubles and needed a place to stay, and because the summer season was imminent and guests would arrive soon, she was asked to help manage the woman's guest house.

But things in “the Dale” were just too weird for her, and Bella's imagination ran wild. She kept hearing odd noises, too many people had keys to the guest house, and the death of the original owner was looking more deliberate than accidental. And yet, try as she might, Bella couldn't seem to leave the odd little enclave — although there was someone who really wanted her to go ...

Now that I see a synopsis written down, I suppose one could say that “Nine Lives” is somewhat convoluted. And that would be correct: it is, and a bit clichéd, too.

It's also filled with deliciously irresistible creepiness.

Starting with a real town as a setting — a town filled with people who talk to the dead — author Wendy Corsi Staub layers on the goosebumps with a murder that may not be a murder and a fictional cast of characters that will keep you guessing. The ghosties and seers aren't the only thing that creates chills here, though: Staub also turns the dial up on psychological terror, too. What more could you want?

Not much, because this is a whodunit lover's whodunit, packed with everything you expect in a mystery and a little more. “Nine Lives” is a curl-up-and-read kind of book, and if that's what you need — there you are.

Be Thankful For Your Local Library

BY KATHY WIBBELS
Yankton Community Library

Have you visited the Yankton Community Library lately? Did you know we are open 64 hours per week and our online catalog is available 24/7? Did you know we have downloadable books for all ages and downloadable magazines?

Have you used one of our computers or accessed our WiFi recently?

Did you know that, on the average, we add 300 new physical items to our collection each month plus titles are always being added to OverDrive, OneClickDigital and Zinio?

Did you know we subscribe to 150 magazine and newspaper titles, and we have 41 electronic databases for research with free access to all library card holders?

Did you know we have all of the old Yankton newspapers on microfilm available to the public?

If you answered no to any of these questions, you need to visit the library today!

A library card is one of the most cost effective investments you can make for you and your family. If you own property in the City of Yankton, a library card is free. If you own property in Yankton County, there is a nominal fee. Anyone living outside of Yankton County and not owning property there can purchase a nonresident card. For no cost or a very minimal cost, a library card holder gains access to more than 73,000 items in our collection plus all of our electronic resources. That is money well spent!

Our children's programs are under way with this session ending the week of Nov. 30. We have three sessions of preschool story time each week for 3- to 5-year-olds on Mondays at 6:30 p.m.; and Wednesdays and Thursdays at 10:15 a.m. Toddler times for 1- to 3-year-olds are held every Tuesday at 10:15 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Programs for elementary children take place every Thursday from 3:45-4:45 p.m. The first Thursday is craft day; the second is LEGO Club; the third, science club; and the fourth is movie day. The Wii is set up every Friday from 3:30-4:30 p.m. Individuals and teams are invited to participate.

Saturday, Nov. 21, is International Game Day. To celebrate, the library is hosting games for all ages from 10-2 p.m. Individuals and families are invited to come play old favorites or bring your own games. Games for teens takes place from 2-4 p.m.

Craft classes for adults are held the second Tuesday of each month beginning at 6:30 p.m. There's always a sample of the monthly project available for viewing at the library.

Facebook 101 takes place Thursday, Nov. 12, at 6:30 p.m., and is free of charge. Our instructor will go over the basics of sharing photos, “poking,” adding friends, “liking,” and privacy settings. Registration is now open.

Readers Anonymous, our afternoon book club, will discuss Harper Lee's new book “Go Set A Watchman” on Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 1 p.m. This club, which is open to new members, meets the second Tuesday of each month.

Between the Lines, our evening book club which is also open to new members, meets the fourth Tuesday of each month at 5:30 p.m. The club meets on Tuesday, Nov. 24, to discuss “The Invention of Wings” by Sue Monk Kidd.

Parents' Night Out is Saturday, Dec. 5, from 4:30-7:30 p.m., at the Summit Activities

Center. The Parks and Recreation Department and the library are again partnering to sponsor an evening of fun for 6- to 12-year-olds. We'll have crafts, games, gym time, pizza and swimming. Registration for the event begins on Nov. 1. Forms can be picked up at the Summit Center and the library, but all forms must be turned in at the library.

We collected 85 cans of soup and 14 packages of crackers in October. We are collecting canned vegetables Nov. 1-10, with donations going to the Contact Center.

If you are using Zinio, our downloadable magazine resource, and want to suggest an additional title to add, we'd love to get your feedback.

Friends of the Library will hold their monthly book sale on Saturday, Nov. 7, from 10-12:30 p.m. This is a bag sale. Friends is always happy to accept gently used books for their sales which take place the first Saturday of every month. No textbooks or encyclopedias, please.

We are closed on Wednesday, Nov. 11, in celebration of Veteran's Day.

We will close at 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 25, and will remain closed Nov. 26-27 in celebration of Thanksgiving. We will operate on regular weekend hours Nov. 28-29.

Did you know that in 2014, we loaned 18,335 electronic books to our patrons through OverDrive and TumbleBooks!
